Reference Information: Parliamentary Procedure

Call to Order - Meetings are called to order by the Chairman, generally the chief of the body in question. (Lodge or Chapter)

Minutes - The minutes of the previous meeting are read and approved. A motion and second are required.

Old Business - Old business is always considered first. Old business is defined as any item discussed at previous meetings and referred to the present for more discussion and/or a discussion. Must be handled under Motion Procedure discussed below.

Committee Reports - After Old Business, each standing committee and any ad-hoc committees are asked for reports. They give their reports, however refrain from making any motions in the process. Committee reports are accepted without need of a motion.

New Business - New Business comprises any recommendations needing action from committee reports and all issues which are newly brought before the group. This is the only section of the meeting which is open to additions on the agenda. Must be handled under Motion Procedure discussed below.

Discussion - Discussion is what really takes up time in meetings. There are some ways to keep Discussion from getting out of hand.

Call the Question - When a member believes there has been sufficient Discussion for all sides of an issue to be fairly considered, he may Call the Question. This is a motion. It requires a Second, but no Discussion. If Seconded it is immediately voted upon. If the Motion carries, Discussion ends and you proceed to a vote on the issue. Calling the Question does not constitute a vote on the issue. If the Motion to Call the Question fails, Discussion continues.

Tabling - When a member believes a matter is out of hand or that discussion is going nowhere or that there is not enough information for the issue to be declared, he may make a Motion to Table the Motion. (ex. I move to table this motion.) As with any Motion, it requires a Second. It requires no discussion. If seconded, the Motion to Table is voted upon immediately. If it passes, the Motion is no longer considered. However, at a later meeting, a Motion can be made to Remove the Motion from the Table. It also requires a Second but no Discussion. If the Motion to Table does not pass, Discussion continues.

Adjournment - Upon completion of all matters above, a motion for adjournment is in order. However, such a motion is in order at any time and may be proposed and voted on without having completed all business on the agenda.

Reference Information: Motion Procedure

All business in a meeting run by the rules of Parliamentary Procedure must be conducted in the form of a motion. When a member of the body wants an issue considered, he "makes a Motion." (ex. I move that Occoneechee Lodge raise its dues to $15.00 per year.) This motion is recorded in the minutes. The chairman then asks for a Second. A second means that another person agrees to the Motion. This is acknowledged by another member saying "Second". Every Motion must have a Second. Without a second, the Motion dies and that issue is not considered. If a Second is given, the Chairman then calls for Discussion. During Discussion, any member may speak on the motion at hand. If, during Discussion, it is discovered that the motion is not adequate, a Motion may be made to Amend the Motion. (ex. I move to amend the motion to read that Occoneechee Lodge raise its dues to $15.00 per year for youth and $17.00 per year for adults.) This Amendment requires a Second and Discussion. Discussion on the Amendment is immediately taken up. Upon finishing Discussion on the Amendment, the Chairman calls for a vote. This vote is on the Amendment only. If the Amendment does not pass, Discussion resumes on the original Motion. If the Amendment does pass, the Amended Version of the Motion becomes the new Motion and Discussion continues. At the conclusion of Discussion on the Motion, the Chairman calls a vote. This vote determines whether the Motion passes or fails. The Chairman then moves on the next order of business.

This represents a very elementary introduction to Parliamentary Procedure as we try to implement it in Occoneechee Lodge. You should be cautioned about getting so tied up in Parliamentary detail as not to consider the business at hand. Just remember: Motion, Second, Discussion, and Vote. That's all there is to it. The other stuff just opens some new avenues to you. If you are interested in Parliamentary Procedure, the authoritative source is Robert's Rules of Order. This legendary work is available at any library or book store.

Reference Information: Officer Election Procedure

- I. The Officer Elections at the annual Fall Fellowship Business Meeting will be conducted by the Elections Committee, even though the Lodge Chief or his representative will supervise and coordinate the election. The chairman of this committee shall be appointed by the Lodge Chief with the approval of the Lodge and Staff Advisers. Furthermore the Lodge Adviser will appoint an adult to supervise the work of this committee and the election as a whole. The Elections Committee Chairman will pick a committee of 4 to 6 youth so that the committee can better complete its responsibilities. No member of the committee will be eligible to run for any elected Lodge office while serving on the Committee.
- II. Any active youth member of the lodge, who will remain under 21 years of age throughout the term of his office, is eligible to run for any lodge office provided that he has either attended the forum for Lodge Officer candidates that is to be held at the Fall Fellowship or he has made an effort to speak with the current lodge officer that corresponds to the office which the candidate is seeking. In no case shall a youth be denied the opportunity to run for any office unless he has specifically refused to attend the said forum or refused to contact the appropriate officer. All decisions of the elections committee in this matter are final.
- III. The responsibilities of a certain office will be described in the Lodge Guidelines.
- IV. The election itself will proceed in the order of succession to the chief as outlined in the guidelines. Any youth who is eligible under Article II of these guidelines may be nominated. Nominations will not require a second. Furthermore, no election for any office shall be conducted until the winner in the election immediately prior to the election of the said office shall have been first declared. All candidates for a certain office will be given the opportunity to speak to the lodge as a whole and will be permitted to have others speak on their behalf before the election itself is conducted. The lodge will also be given the chance to ask any questions of any of the candidates before the election.
- V. The election itself will proceed as follows: After the candidates have answered all questions and been given the chance to address the lodge, the Election Committee Members will cast their ballots. Then they will distribute the ballots to the youth, give the youth a chance to vote, and then collect the ballots. The Lodge Chief, unless he himself is running for an office, or his Representative will not be permitted to vote. The committee counts the votes and reports the results to the Lodge Chief or his Representative. If any candidate has a majority of the ballots cast, then he is declared the winner. If no one has a majority, then the candidate(s) with the least votes is/are dropped and another election is taken until one candidate has a majority and is declared the winner, or all candidates have exactly the same number of votes. In the latter case, the election is declared deadlocked, and another vote is taken. If it is again deadlocked, then the Lodge Chief or his Representative casts enough votes for the candidate of his choice until he has a majority and is declared the winner.

IN NO CASE WILL ANYONE BE ELECTED WITHOUT HAVING FIRST RECEIVED A MAJORITY OF THE VOTES CAST.

- VI. If the Lodge Chief himself is running for office, then he will delegate the responsibility to the Lodge Officer next in line who is not seeking an office or, if all Lodge Officers are seeking Lodge Offices, to a youth Executive Committee Member who is not running for office.
- VII. The number of votes received in any election by any candidate shall remain confidential.
